Small chip to head of spine, boards worn, minor scraping, front inner hinge starting, else very good. $1000.00

Dornbusch I, Mich-56. Nevins I, p.85. Graff 1229 (this copy, marked as sold). With the bookplate of Everett D. Graff. Autobiography of a career soldier; spanning the 19th century. Elderkin joined the army in 1839 at 19 and was first stationed in Indian Territory for two years before going to Florida in 1841. He gives a vivid account of the brutal combats of the Second Seminole War, where he spent several "dark and terrible" years. In 1842, he was transferred to Jefferson Barracks (now Kansas City). He went to the Texas frontier with Taylor in 1846, and was present at Palo Alto, Churubusco, and minor conflicts in between, followed by the taking of Mexico City. In 1852, he was transferred to California, and was under the command of U.S. Grant for a time. In 1854, he left the Army and lived as a miner and musician in California in 1857, before moving to Detroit. In 1861, Elderkin reenlisted and took part in all of the Peninsular Campaign in 1862, of which he gives a vigorous account. He left the army when his one-year enlistment was up (he was now 42) and returned to Detroit, where he remained for the rest of his life. An interesting western narrative.

13. ELECTION OF 1812. Address of the Republican Committee of the City of New-York, Acting Under the Authority of the General Republican Committee of Correspondence of the State of New-York, in Support of the Nomination of the Hon. De Witt Clinton, to the Presidency of the United States at the Ensuing Election. [New York: 1812]. 12pp, lightly tanned and light spotting [faint numerical rubberstamp in blank margin of page (3)]. Top edge partly uncut. Good+. Bound in modern quarter morocco and marbled boards [bookplate on front pastedown]. $500.00

Fueled by jealousy of Virginia's near-monopoly on the presidency, New York Republicans urge the nomination of De Witt Clinton in order to deny President Madison a second term. "We are not aware of any advantage that can result by establishing the rule, that every President, who is not extremely disapproved of, shall be re-elected." The Committee, citing relevant constitutional precedent, reminds fellow Republicans that "the chief magistrate is to be chosen by the States, in their separate [sic], sovereign capacities," not by congressional caucuses, who favor Madison.

The Committee criticizes Madison's conduct of the War of 1812, particularly the failure to bring the army to a state of readiness. "Where are the marks of system or preparation?" A Clinton presidency will relieve us "from the evils of an inefficient administration, and of an inadequately conducted war." The Address is signed in type at the end by 17 New York City Republicans. 14. ELIOT, Jared. A Continuation of the Essay Upon Field-Husbandry, As It Is, or May Be Ordered in New-England. New London: Timothy Green 1751. [2], 32pp. 16mo. Modern blue cloth, gilt-lettered spine. Title page trimmed along top edge, touching the top of the first two words of the title. Hole (perhaps a paper flaw) in blank inner margin of the title page, not affecting text. Old dampstain throughout. Good. $2750.00

EVANS 6666. NAIP w037582. JOHNSON, NEW LONDON IMPRINTS 534. RINK 1084. ANB 7, pp. 400-401. DAB VI, pp.78-79. The rare third part of the landmark series of six essays on American agriculture by Jared Eliot. Though the title indicates that the text is limited to New England, Eliot discusses the state of "field husbandry" throughout the colonies, including New York and the South. The DAB emphasizes that for a long time these essays were "the most widely read and prized agricultural essays in America." This third essay contains much on the growing of grains, including wheat, barley, oats and millet, as well as "Indian corn," and also discusses the need to drain swampland in order to reclaim it for crops. Through his agricultural essays, Eliot helped to introduce the concept of soil conservation in the British colonies, and was largely responsible for introducing the silk industry to colonial America. Over the course of the six essays, Eliot dismisses the opinion of some in Great Britain that the colonies are of little use. Eliot argues that as the colonial population increases, the number, and quality of goods the colonies are able to send to Great Britain will also increase. But more importantly, the demand for British goods will likewise rise, giving Great Britain the double benefit of a greater supply network and a larger market. Eliot is also remembered fondly in New Haven for establishing Yale's first endowed fund to buy books, a legacy that funds purchases to this day.

15. ELIOT, John. A Biographical Dictionary Containing a Brief Account of the First Settlers, and Other Eminent Characters Among the Magistrates, Ministers, Literary and Worthy Men, in New-England. Salem: Cushing and Appleton, 1809. viii,511,[1, errata] pp. Orig. full calf with red morocco spine label. A very good copy. $450.00

After graduating Harvard at the age of 14, John Eliot (1754-1813) worked as a pastor at several churches until succeeding his father in the pulpit of New North Church and was ordained and installed there in 1779. He was associated with Dr. Belknap in founding the Massachusetts Historical Society and both gave it many papers himself and helped procure them from others.

16. (ELIZABETH ISLANDS). The Elizabeth Islands. [np, nd. @1820]. Neat ink manuscript. Pages [2], 1 28, with several blank interleaves. Contemporary marbled wrappers [spine wear], stitched. Very Good. $1500.00

An early account of the geography, topography, resources, and history of the Elizabeth Islands, a chain of small islands, mostly privately owned, extending about 16 miles from the southwestern tip of Cape Cod, between Buzzards Bay and Vineyard Sound. The largest island, Naushon, was a British naval base during the War of 1812. The author, having delineated meticulously the locations of each of the islands, observes that "The Elizabeth Islands are story," and that "Cows are kept on all the islands; but they are most noted for their sheep, which are larger, better fed, and more effectually sheltered, than those on Martha's Vineyard. Their fleeces are much finer, and more abundant." Moreover, lobsters, "which are not in plenty at Martha's Vineyard, are caught in great abundance at all the Elizabeth Islands." Currently "thinly peopled," without schools, grist mill, or church, the islands are "capable of supporting a great number of inhabitants."

17. ELLETT, Charles, Jr. Report of the Location of the Western Portion of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail-Road, to a Committee of the City Council of Wheeling. Phila.: Printed by John C. Clark, 1850. 1st ed. 87 pp. Orig. printed wrappers. Front wrapper separated but present, light chipping to spine, very old waterstain to foot of pamphlet not affecting text, else a very good copy. $450.00

Charles Ellet, Jr. (1810-1862) was a civil engineer and a colonel in the Civil War, mortally wounded at the Battle of Memphis. In 1842, he designed and built the first major cable suspension bridge in the United States in Philadelphia over the Schuylkill River. In 1849, he completed his bridge at Wheeling over the Ohio River, a span of over 1000 feet, the world's longest. This report deals with Ellet's (successful) proposal that the Baltimore and Ohio make Wheeling its western terminus to capitalize on the presence of the bridge.

18. ELLETT, Charles. The Mississippi and Ohio Rivers: Containing Plans for the Protection of the Delta from Inundation; and Investigations of the Practicability and Cost of Improving the Navigation of the Ohio and Other Rivers by Means of Reservoirs. Phila., 1853. viii, [17]-367pp. Illus. with 12 maps & plans, 2 of which are folding. Very good in later two-tone cloth. $250.00

An extensive consideration of flooding, navigation, and engineering issues along the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers. Ellet (1810-1862) was a noted civil engineer and a prolific author. According to the DAB, he spent many years urging the improvement of western rivers, and this title was his magnum opus.

19. ELLETT, Elizabeth F. The Women of the American Revolution. New York: Baker and Scribner, 1849-1850. 3 Vols. 348;312;396pp. Portrait frontises., portraits. Orig. blindstamped cloth. Wear to spine ends and corners of Vol. One; wear to spine ends of Vol. Two; Vol. Three expertly repaired with orig. spine laid down; internally very clean; a very good set, complete with all seven portraits. $450.00

HOWES E-93. A mixed set: Vol. One is a 3rd ed., Vol. Two is a 4th ed., and Vol. Three is a 1st ed. Ellet was the first writer to record the lives of women who had made significant contributions during the American Revolution. Ellet not only recovered the history of women of that era; she recognized the importance of preserving these stories, which had been ignored by other American historians. The 1848 work was so popular that the third volume was added in 1850.

20. ELLICOTT, Andrew. The Journal of Andrew Ellicott, Late Commissioner on Behalf of the United States during Part of the Year 1796, the Years 1797, 1798, 1799, and Part of the Year 1800: for Determining the Boundary between the United States and the Possessions of his Catholic Majesty in America, Containing Occasional Remarks on the Situation, Soil, Rivers, Natural Productions, and Diseases of the Different Countries on the Ohio, Mississippi, and Gulf of Mexico ... Philadelphia: Printed by William Fry, 1814. 4to (10 x 7 3/4 inches). vii, 299, 151pp. 14 engraved folding maps and charts. Contemporary 3/4 black morocco and marbled boards, spine gilt. Small amount of light scattered foxing, boards rubbed, light rubbing to spine ends, corners worn, else very good. $6500.00

HOWES E-94, "aa." Graff 1230 (1803 ed.). Sabin 22217. Second issue composed of the sheets of the 1803 edition with a tipped in title page dated 1814. Ellicott's was the first thorough American survey of West Florida, the lower Mississippi and Gulf regions. His report influenced the eventual U.S. acquisition of the area. Andrew Ellicott came from a talented Quaker family with mills in Pennsylvania and Maryland. "No Quaker himself, he served in the Revolution. He was best known as a surveyor; having had a hand in the boundaries of New York, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Georgia, and South Carolina; and he surveyed the District of Columbia. Pursuant to the treaty of San Lorenzo el Real, 1795, he was appointed by George Washington as United States commissioner for drawing the boundary between the United States and the Spanish Florida.

"Ellicott's Journal is the product of this commission. The narrative part of it is no journal at all, but a carefully composed work written in 1802.... The appendix is a record of meteorological, astronomical, and chronometrical observations from the mouth of the Ohio (late 1796) down the Mississippi, and along the boundary and Gulf Coast to the mouth of St. Mary's (early 1800). It also lists and describes the instruments used in running the line.... Ellicott's remarks on the places he visited... are useful as are the temperatures and other scientific data; incidental description... botanical lists; descriptions of the Florida Keys; practical advice on navigating the Mississippi; and remarks on the soil of the Mississippi Territory and the Floridas.

...[T]he most valuable and interesting portion of this book is that which deals with Ellicott's residence at Natchez, February, 1797, to April, 1798, during the period when the Spanish were delaying the execution of the treaty, and the year in which the transition from Spanish to American rule was effected.... Ellicott threw off his disguise of surveyor, and probably had more fun and a larger sense of importance than he ever had in his life as an agent of manifest destiny, a politician, and promoter of rebellion and factionalism.... He helped shape the first American government in the territory, and served as somewhat more than a catalytic agent in the formation of political parties in the Mississippi Territory." --Clark II, 89.

24. ELLIS, Edward S. Uncrowning a King: A Tale of King Philip's War. Original pictorial cloth. New York: New Amsterdam Book Company, 1896. $375.00
First edition. This copy has the ownership signature of Edward P. Alexander on the front free endpaper. Alexander (1835-1910) was born in Washington, Georgia, and graduated West Point in 1857. Prior to the war, he invented a new method of army signaling based on his study of Albert J. Myer's system. The Alexander "wig-wag" technique became standard for both armies in the Civil War. Jefferson Davis appointed Alexander to Beauregard's staff as engineer and chief of the signal service. He distinguished himself at First Manassas afterwards becoming chief of ordnance for the Army of Northern Virginia. He fought in all of the Army's major engagements and played a pivotal role at Fredericksburg. He surrendered with Lee at Appomattox. After the war, he served as government director of the Union Pacific Railroad and president of the Georgia Railroad & Banking Company. He wrote several books including Military Memoirs of a Confederate (1907).

Sabin 22312. Staton & Tremaine, Canadiana, 207. "The first part contains a synopsis of twenty-three English voyages to discover the North-West Passage made by Frobisher, Cabot, Weymouth, Hudson, James and others; besides a history of the rise of the Hudson's Bay Company, and the discovery attempted from New England. The second part gives an account of a voyage under Captains Moor and Francis Smith, financed by private subscription, with Dobbs the leading subscriber; the author, also a subscriber, was hydrographer, surveyor, and mineralogist on the expedition, which proved, finally, the non-existence of a North-West Passage from Hudson's Bay. The work included many valuable observations on tides, on the vagaries of the compass, and on the customs of the Eskimos, a race then practically unknown."

Original printed wrappers gathered with cord. Slight wrapper wear, internally fine, with bookplate of Col. Henry A. Siegel. Not in Bruns or Heller. $2000.00 Inscribed on front flyleaf "Merry Christmas from Victor, 1934." Victor Elting and his friend McPherson left Chicago July 29, 1933 and arrived at a station in Northern Canada called Ombabika in the Thunder Bay District on the 31st. Elting ends his work with these words: "As we travelled back to Toronto we talked it all over. We had travelled more than three hundred miles in the wilderness and had visited an old civilization. We had emerged with a better sense of values and a better philosophy of life. We were in bounding health. We had taken certain physical risks but we had rejoiced in them. If we had taken counsel of our fears of accident or sickness we would have stayed at home, and we would have missed a great adventure."

Evans 33693-33676. Though based on the third edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica, this work has much original matter, including articles written by Americans. Dobson objected to the Edinburgh original's British biases and edited much of them out. "From every standpoint the highest achievement in Colonial bookmaking. The whole work, illustrations, type, and paper (and content) shows an achievement of professional craftsmen working together for an enlightened publisher. The first American book on anything like such a scale, Dobson's work marks the end of printing in America as a household craft and the beginning of its (modern) development." Evans 22486.

ARNDT 76. EVANS 5603. NAIP w006901. HILDEBURN 932. DOLL AND FUNKE 370. BENDER, p. 2, SEIDENSTICKER, p.26. Evans calls this "The first book printed at the Brotherhood press" of the Ephrata Cloister, and it is generally accepted as such. Seidensticker suggests that a press was in operation before 1745, though he locates no earlier Ephrata imprints. The "Golden Apple" is a devotional book of the Swiss-Menonite brethren, originally printed in Basel in 1702 and reprinted there in 1742. This Ephrata printing is the third edition of the text, containing devotional works from a variety of sources, including the Anabaptists. The overall emphasis of the texts is to shore up the spirit in the face of adversity, and would have been especially useful to the relatively new Ephrata Cloister, which was established in what is now Lancaster County, Pennsylvania in 1732. Known for their simple and monastic lifestyle, the community established their own printing press after their leader, Conrad Beissel, had a falling out with the pioneering German-American printer, Christoph Saur.

There are two issues of this collection, one with a title page noting its intended use by the Ephrata community (as in the present copy) and another with a title page noting its use by the Menonites. The "Menonite title page" is also found in this copy, bound in at the rear, as is sometimes the case.

35. ERNUL, J[ohn]. B. Life of a Confederate Soldier in a Federal Prison. Vanceboro, NC: n.d.[1909]. 1st ed. 15 pp. Orig. printed wrappers. Fine. $650.00
Very rare. OCLC locates only 5 copies. Dornbusch II, 2720. Thornton 4023. Describes the experiences of a Craven County resident while in a northern prison camp. John B. Ernul (1843-1918) enlisted at the age of 18 in Co. I, 10th NC Artillery, but he was transferred to an infantry unit. On March 7, 1865, he was wounded in the leg, captured, and imprisoned at Point Lookout. He was released on June 11, returning to New Bern on June 23. After the war, Ernul moved to New Bern, where he was listed as a shingle dealer in the Craven County census of 1880. Thornton indicates this item was printed in New Bern, NC, by Owen Dunn, but the original source for that information is unknown.

Wing 3530. Arents 271. Krivatsy 3748. Sabin 23216. Wellcome II, p.537. First published in Latin in 1587, this first edition in English includes parts of Neander's Tobacologia (1622) and is dedicated to "the worthy merchants and planters of Tobacco, for and in the West-Indies and America." From the dedication: "I confes that Tobacco is a plant of Gods making, and it hath many admirable faculties in it, and the fault is not in the leaf, though it be sophisticated by some, and inordinately abused by others; yet there is some reason to suspect, that there hath been much of the cunning of the Devil, and of man's perverse understanding imployed in the large propagation of it, because that Christians, Jews, Turks and Infidels, almost all mankind, who are naturally so averse from all that is good, and prone to nothing but mischief, are so much delighted with it."

40. EWELL, R[ichard] S. and BEAUREGARD, G.T. The First Manassas. Correspondence between Generals R.S. Ewell and G.T. Beauregard, to Which Are Added Extracts from a Letter of Gen. Fitz Lee. Faint scattered foxing, one autograph correction, else very good or better. $600.00

Scarce. Dornbusch III, 1485. "General Ewell was scrupulously careful of the military reputation of his associates in arms, and doubly so when a subordinate was concerned. Had the same moderation and self-restraint influenced General Beauregard, this publication would be unnecessary" from the introductory note.

41. FADEN, William, engraver. A Plan of the City and Environs of Philadelphia Survey'd by N. Scull and G. Heap. London: W. Faden, 1777. 1 sheet folio, 24-5/8 x 18-1/2 inches. Framed. A few very tiny stains at foot of sheet, not affecting map, else a very good or better copy. $7500.00

Although already 25 years out of date, this map was one of only two maps of Philadelphia available at the start of the Revolutionary War: Faden issued this in March 1777, six months before Philadelphia came into the military campaign.

"Faden was careful to give credit on his plate to the pioneer American mapmakers. Instead of placing the elevation of the Statehouse across the top, as Scull and Heap had done, Faden inserted it at the bottom without setting it off by boundary lines. Nor was he slavish in copying the country homes; rather, he made an effort at updating the Philadelphia environs." Snyder, City of Independence.

This is the third state of Faden's map with "Billingsport Island" below Hog Island, joined by cheveaux de fises with south bank of the river. Snyder, City of Independence, 47B. Nebenzahl, Atlas of the American Revolution, 26.

43. [FANNING, Edmund]. The Knickerbocker Barque, or Betsey's Voyage from New York Around the World. New York: Printed for Historical Information, 1833. 11pp. Letterpress title with small wood-engraved vignette. Stitched as issued. A fine copy. $2000.00

An extraordinarily rare pamphlet relating to Fanning's first expedition to China in the early days of the China trade. Written in response to the publication of Edmund Fanning's 'Voyages Round the World' (New York, 1833), the anonymous New York author of this pamphlet recounts his vivid memories of the building and launching of the barque Betsey in 1797, as well as a detailed account of the triumphant return of the ship from Canton the following year. Fanning's first voyage to the South Seas was aboard the Betsey during its maiden voyage. The ship procured a cargo of seal skins, proceeded to trade them in the lucrative China market and return to New York with luxurious and exotic goods to sell in America, including silks, spices, teas, china, etc. Bursting with Knickerbocker pride, the author in this pamphlet details the celebration in the city at the return of the native ship, the scene at the wharf on the unloading of the unbelievable cargo, and the procession of the ship's crew to receive their pay: $1000 each, plus a bid of nankeens, a piece of silk handkerchiefs and two pieces of silk. The author of this rare pamphlet concludes:

"Thus, Mr. Printer, you are informed by a person then present, and an eye-witness, what an excitement of pride this new and fortunate enterprise, in the very fact, was to the people of Gotham, at that early day of our national character and commercial trade...I would request the liberty to remark, that I find much entertaining and interesting matter in this book of voyages [i.e Fanning's 'Voyages Round the World'] and can warmly recommend the perusal of it to all my fellow citizens..."

Only three copies of this ephemeral work are located by OCLC (New-York Historical Society, American Antiquarian Society, University of Delaware) and three more added by American Imprints (Library of Congress, New York Public Library, American Geographical Society). AMERICAN IMPRINTS 19639 (3 copies).

In a green cloth chemise, brown morocco label. Provenance: E.A. Bradford (early pencilled signature to front pastedown); Sarah F. Bradford (inscription). $2450.00

FERGUSON 1643. HOWES F27, "aa." SABIN 23780. AMERICAN IMPRINTS 18752. FORBES HAWAII 839. Fanning's adventurous life at sea began at a young age. A native of Connecticut, he set sail in 1792 for the South Seas in search of seal skins. During the following twenty-five years, he made voyages around the world and to the Pacific, visiting Australia, South Georgia, Fiji, Tonga, and the Marquesas. Included in his work is a narrative of the first American naval exploring expedition to the southern hemisphere in 1829-30 by Benjamin Pendleton. "Fanning, who went to sea as a 14-year-old cabin boy in 1783, first sailed to the South Seas on a voyage for seal skins on the Betsey in May 1797. During the next 25 years, he either captained or directed over 70 voyages to the Pacific and around the globe, personally visiting China, Australia, Fiji, and the Marquesas. In 1798 he discovered both Fanning and Palmyra Islands...the latter is officially a part of the city and county of Honolulu and is privately owned by a Honolulu family. In 1829, Fanning was instrumental in sending out an exploring expedition under the command of Captain Benjamin Pendleton and Nathaniel Brown Palmer.... It was Fanning's petition to Congress and largely his own personal efforts that led to the ... fitting out of the United States Exploring Expedition[i.e. Wilkes Expedition]"-Forbes. The Bishop Museum in Honolulu holds Princess Kaiulani's copy of Fanning's Voyages.

Rare, Worldcat locates 18 copies. This handbook of the principles and practices of architecture, sculpture, and painting first appeared in 1676. By far the most important section is that on architecture. This work was written for the general public, intended to do away with craft secrets and to make the crafts associated with the arts understandable to laymen. Chapter 11 deals with types of building, Chap. 12 to materials, 13 to military engineering, and 14 -22 to the various crafts. The engravings show the tools of each trade with the names of each tool on the facing page.

A complete official record of the Acts of the Fifth Congress and the Journals of the three Sessions of the House for that Congress. Although the Acts' title refers only to the First Session, all three Sessions are included. The Second and Third Sessions are preceded by half titles. Paged more or less continuously, this printing of the Acts is not in Evans, Bristol, or Shipton & Mooney. The Alien & Sedition Acts and establishment of the Marine Corps, plus a treaty with the Cherokees, are among this Congress's significant Acts. The Journals begin with President Adams's Message of May 16, 1797, on deteriorating relations with France and the status of dealings with Spain on the Florida boundary. They cover the Blount impeachment and his activities in stirring up Indians and frontiersmen in the South to detach Florida and Louisiana from Spain, and deliver them to England; the War in Europe and effects on American commerce; the fight between Congressmen Lyon and Griswold, and Lyon's expulsion; the quasi-War with France; the Non-Intercourse Act; petitions by Virginians and others opposing the Alien & Sedition Act. This was a lively Congress; offered here is an excellent record of its activities. Evans 32970, 34719, 36519 [Journals]. This printing of the Acts not in Evans, Shipton & Mooney, or Bristol. 64. FIGUEROA, Jose. The Manifesto, Which the General of Brigade, Don Jose Figueroa, Commandant-General And Political Chief Of U. California, Makes To The Mexican Republic, In Regard To His Conduct And That Of The Snrs. D. Jose Maria De Hijars And D. Jose Maria Padres, As Directors Of Colonization In 1833 And 1834. San Francisco: Herald Office, 1855. 104,[1]pp. Original printed wrappers, stitched. Additional old stab holes, some rubbing and soiling to wrappers, soft crease to bottom corner, effaced stamp on front wrapper. Moderate foxing throughout, bump to fore edge. About very good. In a tan buckram chemise and slipcase, spine gilt. $6500.00

The scarce first English-language edition of Figueroa's defense of his conduct in a California colonization plan, following the extremely rare first edition of 1835, which was the first book-length imprint from Agustin Zamorano's pioneer California press. This copy comes in the rare printed wrappers, with the front wrapper reading, MISSIONS TO CALIFORNIA. A TRANSLATION OF GOV'R FIGUEROA'S MANIFESTO, PRINTED IN MONTEREY, IN 1835, BY AGUSTIN V. ZAMORANO and including the Herald Office imprint at bottom.

Hijar and Padres planned an ambitious project of colonizing California in the early 1830s, which brought to California many families who played a prominent role in the development of the province. The Mexican government secularized the missions in 1833, and the expectation was that the families would take possession of the mission lands. Hijar and Padres themselves expected to be given governmental positions of importance. Orders from Mexico countermanded the promises, and Figueroa, governor of California, refused to hand over the lands, for which he was criticized.

This edition is quite rare, and Howes affords it a "c" rating. Rarer still are copies found in the original wrappers. The Streeter copy, also in wrappers, sold to Michael Ginsberg for $375 in 1968. COWAN, p.210. GRAFF 1320. GREENWOOD 562. HOWES F122, "c." JONES 1330. SABIN Howes F-153a. Wagner-Camp 8:6. Sabin 24509. Rader 1397. Pilling Proof-Sheets 1297. The second American printing of the so-called "Apocrypha edition" of Lewis and Clark, bearing the name of compiler William Fisher on the title page. In response to the growing curiosity of the public regarding the findings of Lewis and Clark, and the delay in publication of the "authorized account" of their expedition, this compilation of bits and pieces from already published works appeared (culled from Gass, Clark, Mackenzie, Carver, and Jefferson's MESSAGE... of 1806), misleading the reader into believing that it was the account sanctioned by the government and containing all the information gathered during the journey. Howes calls this the "spurious" edition, while Sabin states it contains material not published in any other edition. The work originally appeared in Philadelphia and London in 1809, followed by German printings in 1811 and 1812. A Baltimore edition also appeared in 1812, but Howes gives precedence to the Philadelphia printing. Howes mentions that some copies of this title carry a second title page, as in the present copy.

HILL 611. BEDDIE 1302. FERGUSON 105. SABIN 24749. COX II:304. First English edition, following the French edition of the previous year. Writing during a period of intense international rivalry over discoveries in the Pacific, Fleurieu (a French politician and scientist) promotes the discoveries of Bougainville and Jean de Surville at the expense of British claims, though he does acknowledge some of Captain Cook's discoveries. To bolster his claims for the French, Fleurieu uses unpublished manuscripts, as well as the printed accounts of several Spanish and British navigators. An appendix prints Buache's "Extract from a memoir concerning the existence and situation of Solomon's Islands...." The twelve folding maps and plates relate to New Guinea and the Solomon Islands. "The maps are interesting, since they were based both on actual discoveries and on Fleurieu's theories. When d'Entrecasteaux returned from his fruitless search for La Perouse, he confirmed that Fleurieu's theories appeared to be generally correct" - Hill.

Contemporary half russia over marbled paper-covered boards, the flat spines divided into six compartments by double gilt fillets, lettered in the second compartment, numbered in the fourth. A fine set. $7000.00

The first edition of the text of the first circumnavigation of Australia and enlightening and fascinating story of brilliant navigation and discovery. Wantrup rightly calls this work 'the most outstanding book on the coastal navigation of Australia,' and 'the centerpiece of any collection of books dealing with Australian coastal discovery.' Flinders sailed from England on 18 July 1801, and during the next two years he surveyed the entire south coast of Australia from Cape Leeuwin to Bass Strait, the east coast, and the Gulf of Carpentaria. He returned to Port Jackson in 1803 having completed the first circumnavigation of Australia. On the return journey, Flinders was detained by the French in Mauritius for six and a half years and was not released until June 1810. He devoted the remainder of his life to the publication of this work, which was formally published one day before his death on 19 July 1814. It is a day-by-day record of the expedition and includes a lengthy introduction detailing earlier South Seas voyages and an appendix by Robert Brown, the botanist who accompanied the expedition. Flinders took great pains to insure the accuracy of the work and the charts contained in the atlas were used for navigation for over a century. The two volumes of text were originally published in both large-paper and normal issues: the present set is from the regular-sized issue. A beautiful series of small chromolithographs of vacationing scenes in northern Florida, from the early days of its tourist era. Scenes are in and around Jacksonville, along the St. John's River; Palatka, St. Augustine, along the Ocklawaha River; and generic southern scenes. The Dodge Company of Buffalo made similar portfolios for other vacation spots.

84. [FLORIDA]. Sarasota and Its Outlying Districts Manatee County Florida. Portsmouth, Va.: Industrial Department, Seaboard Air Line Railway, [ca. 1905]. [16]pp. including illustrations. Map on inner rear wrapper. Original printed teal wrappers. Stamp of "Lord & Edwards, Real Estate, Sarasota, Fla.," in lower margin of p.[1]. Minor wear to corners. Near fine. $850.00

An early development pamphlet issued not long after Sarasota was incorporated as a town on October 14, 1902. The Seaboard Railroad (publisher of this brochure) had finished its extension line from Tampa to Sarasota in 1899 (five years ahead of schedule); that same year a phone line from Manatee to Sarasota was installed by the Gulf Coast Telephone Company. The Sarasota area had been known for its citrus industry since the 1870s, but in 1886, Scotsman John H. Gillespie arrived and, with his company, Florida Mortgage and Investment Co., established steamship connections with Tampa, built the De Soto Hotel (later known as the Belle Haven Inn), and laid out the first golf course in Florida and the second in America. Perhaps unsurprisingly, Gillespie also served as Sarasota's first mayor, uniting its agricultural promise and its potential for tourism. The anonymous author highlights the extended growing season for fruits and vegetables, the ample fishing, and provides testimony from locals about the area's beauty, with the promise that "rural Florida in summer is not excessively warm." While that final statement is patently false, this remains an interesting and rare example of early development along the Gulf Coast in Florida. No copies are listed in OCLC, and Servies' listing is based on a Hayman Books catalogue of 1991. SERVIES 14294.

Bound in period-style calf-backed marbled boards, gilt-ruled spine, red morocco spine label. Light scattered foxing, heads of four leaves and frontis. professionally restored, else very good. $7500.00

Rare. Meissel III:350. Forster, a German naturalist, was the official botanist on Cook's second voyage. With his son, Georg, they published their own account of that voyage, as well as numerous other important works on botany and natural history in America, Australasia, and the Pacific. Forster also translated into English the accounts of Bossu and Peter Kalm. This work is the catalogue of North American fauna to which Forster alluded in the third volume of Kalm's travels. He seems to have relied upon the accounts of Catesby, Edwards, and Pennant, and hoped to encourage a major work on the natural history of America. The final nine pages contain "Short Directions for Lover and Promoters of Natural History, in What Manner Specimens of All Kinds May Be Collected, Preserved, and Transported to Distant Countries. The frontis shows "an elegant little Falcon, drawn and engraved from a fine specimen lately brought over from North America."

Drake 3197. Evans 11548. The first appearance of Franklin's epitaph appears on p. [4]. Franklin had written it in 1728. At least three copies of the epitaph are known to exist in Franklin's hand, each in slightly different forms. Franklin composed his epitaph when he was 22 years old in 1728. Ames provides this humorless introduction: "Mr. Franklin's Epitaph on himself curious for conveying such solemn ideas in the Stile of his Occupation": "The Body of BENJAMIN FRANKLIN Printer, Like the Covering of an Old Book Its contents torn out And stript of its Lettering and Gilding, Lies here, Food for Worms; But the Work shall not be lost, It will (as he believ'd) appear once more In a new and more beautiful Edition Corrected and amended By the Author He was born January 6th 1706 and died.....17 ." Twenty years later when death finally came at age 84, Franklin opted "Franklin, Deborah and Benjamin, 1790." The Ames almanacs "had no real rivals in New England for half a century and in the opinion of one eminent authority were `in most respects better than Franklin's more famous Poor Richard almanacs'... They are said to have had a circulation of 60,000 copies annually by 1764, when the elder Ames died ... In these circumstances, it is not surprising that Franklin's Epitaph became familiar. The surprising thing is that it was not reprinted more frequently than, apparently, it was ... [T]he Ames text, apart from the corrupt form `Covering' for `Cover' in the third line, probably derives from. The holograph version owned by Jane (Franklin) Mecom," Franklin's favorite sibling who lived in Boston. "The Ameses, father and son, were admirers of Franklin (as a number of allusions in their almanacs show) and they had probably met the great man when he stopped in Dedham on his inspection tour of New England post offices in the fall of 1763. Nothing could have been more natural than for Mrs. Mecom to have supplied, at the almanac-maker's request a copy of her brother's Epitaph" -L.H. Butterfield, "B. Franklin's Epitaph," New Colophon 50:23.

102. FRANKLIN, Benjamin. Autograph Letter, Signed, from Benjamin Franklin, Evidently to Noted London Publisher William Strahan, Regarding "A New Work of Commerce". [London. ca. 1759-1762. [1]pp. Old folds, a few expert repairs on verso. Very good. $28,500.00

A most interesting letter from Benjamin Franklin during his time in London as an agent for the Pennsylvania Assembly. The letter contains Franklin's appraisal of a "new work on Commerce" presumably published by Strahan. Franklin's letter to Strahan, the noted London publisher, reads in full:

"Dear Sir, I have perus'd the Parts of the work you put into my Hands of the new Work on Commerce, &c, and must own myself extremely pleas'd with it. The Author appears to me to put a more laborious It is a most valuable Collection of Facts that which I should think every one in Britain, Ireland & the Colonies who has anything to do with Publick affairs, or is desirous of understanding that very interesting Subject, would gladly be possessed of. The Author appears to me, not a mere laborious Compiler, but to have collected with good Judgment; & his own Sentiments where he gives them are, I think, generally just. It would be a Miracle if in so large a Work there should not be some Mistakes; and some I think conceive there are, which the Author seems to have been almost unavoidably led into by the general Current of Commercial Writers. The Language too, I think, requires a little filing & polishing, for the Readers of this Age grow delicate. I am, my dear Friend Yours affectionately, B Franklin."

The specific published work to which Franklin is referring is nigh impossible to identify, based on the generalities with which he appraises it. The Franklin Papers identify the recipient of the letter as William Strahan based on Franklin's cordial greeting and closing, which are both consistent with the manner in which he addressed Strahan in the two men's' voluminous correspondence. Franklin and Strahan had been corresponding since at least 1752, and would continue as correspondents and friends for the remainder of their lives, with a brief interruption of relations during the American Revolution. At that time, with Strahan serving as a member of Parliament, Franklin fired Strahan a famous letter that read, in part: "You are a member of Parliament, and one of that majority which has doomed my country to destruction. You have begun to burn our towns and murder our people. Look upon your hands! They are stained with the blood of your relations. You and I were long friends. You are now my enemy...." The present letter stems from a happier time in their relationship, when the two men were mutual admirers of each others' work as printers, publishers, and political leaders. Untrimmed. $25,000.00

"America's first great scientific contribution" - Howes. This is the fourth, first collected, and by far most desirable edition, containing for the first time complete notes on all the experiments, as well as correspondence between Peter Collinson, Franklin, and other collaborators. Franklin began experimenting with electricity as early as 1745, demonstrating the electrical property of lightning and inventing the lightning conductor. This volume includes summaries of his work with Leyden jars, charged clouds, and lightning rods, as well as his famous kite and key experiment. In addition to the electrical experiments, it contains the important discovery of the course of storms over North America and other important meteorological observations.

The work caused a sensation in the scientific world when first published in 1751, and ranked in the eyes of many of Franklin's contemporaries as far beyond any of his political achievements. Harvard and Yale awarded him honorary degrees in 1753; he received the highest award of the Royal Society, the Copley Medal, the same year; and he was elected to the Society in 1756, the first American to be so honored.

This fourth edition is the first complete edition of the original work. The earlier editions were issued in separately published parts. Franklin edited this new one-volume edition himself, significantly revising the text, adding for the first time a number of his own philosophical letters and papers, introducing footnotes, correcting errors, and adding an index. This copy includes the errata/advertisement leaf which is often lacking. "America's first great scientific contribution" - Howes. HOWES F320, "b." PRINTING AND THE MIND OF MAN 199. SABIN 25506. John Fothergill (1712-1780), a Quaker, studied medicine in Edinburgh and had a lucrative medical practice in London. Robert Proud, the first historian of Pennsylvania, described Fothergill as his "relative and friend," and wrote that he studied medicine in London at his urging. Fothergill had a great interest in botany and was a friend of Peter Collinson and John Bartram. Collinson, who was the Library Company's book agent, introduced Benjamin Franklin to Fothergill. When Franklin became ill after his arrival in London in 1757, he became Fothergill's patient. They remained close friends. When news of Fothergill's death reached Franklin, he wrote the "I think a worthier man never lived. For besides his constant readiness to serve his friends, he was always studying and projecting something for the good of his country and of mankind in general.

"This was included by Mr. Duane and Mr. Sparks in their editions of Franklin's writings, but the latter on discovering in Franklin's letter to Hume a positive denial of the authorship of the work, cancelled his note and substituted in Volume X a new one, in which Franklin's statement is accepted as final. In spite of this denial, however, I think this work must still be treated as from Franklin's pen (though it is clear that he deemed himself free to deny it), for Franklin was at that time the only person in London who had the knowledge and material for such a book; he was the only person interested in the writing of it, and was indeed virtually sent to London for just such work; and was the person who paid the cost of publication, and distributed the copies; but what is most conclusive is the statement of his son William (then in London) that 'My father has been much occupied of late with putting together the materials for the work against the p--rs, but Mr. Ralph is engaged to see it through the press, as he does not wish to appear in the affair.' That Franklin did not succeed in this it is hardly necessary to state, for the Reviews all treated it as from his pen, and till Mr. Sparks printed the letter to Hume it was universally catalogued as by him"-Ford.

"America's first great scientific contribution" - Howes. "The most important scientific book of 18th century America" - PMM.

Franklin began his famous experiments on electricity in 1745, demonstrating the electrical property of lightning and inventing the lightning conductor. This volume includes summaries of his work with Leyden jars, charged clouds and lightning rods, as well as his famous kite and key experiment. Beginning in 1747, he described his experiments to his London friend and fellow scientist, Peter Collinson, in a series of letters which outlined his experiments and conclusions, which led to the first proper understanding of the properties of electricity. Collinson thought Franklin's research so important; he published it without obtaining Franklin's permission. In 1753, this time with Franklin's leave, he published additional material, most famously the description of the kite experiment, and the following year the third part, with further elaboration. Franklin subsequently oversaw numerous editions of ...ELECTRICITY... while he was a resident in London from 1757 to 1774.

121. FRANKLIN, Benjamin. Poor Richard Improved: Being an Almanack and Ephemeris of the Motions of the Sun and Moon ... For the Year of our Lord 1754. Philadelphia: B. Franklin and D. Hall, [1753]. 12mo. [36]pp. Woodcut zodiac man and monthly panels. Expertly bound to style in 19th century dark green morocco, spine gilt with raised bands, marbled endpapers. $22,500.00 Rare issue of Poor Richard's Almanack, written and published by Benjamin Franklin.

All issues of Poor Richard's Almanack prior to 1758 - Franklin's last year as author - are rare. In the preface of the present 1752 edition of Franklin's famous almanac, he discusses the history of almanac makers (primarily by his own admission just to fill the page), followed by statistics on the population of New Jersey, a receipt for curing gammons, and followed by astrological information. The calendar is interspersed with the conclusion of his essay "On Idea of the Creator from his Works." The final two leaves list court days in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, and New York, as well as post road routes, and Quaker meetings. Two issues are noted: the present without the advertisement on verso of E4. Drake 9756; Ford 92; Evans 7003; Miller 570; Campbell 510; Hildeburn 1325; ESTC W22788.

122. FRANKLIN, Benjamin. The Way to Wealth or Poor Richard Improved. Paris: Printed for Ant. Aug. Renouard, [Dijon: Printed by P. Causse], 1795. Original rose paper over boards; paper at spine and corners worn; original paper label on spine. A very good, clean, uncut, large [18 cm] copy. $7500.00 Ford 134. Brunet II: 1382n. "The prettiest edition yet printed." (Ford). According to Brunet, this is one of only six large paper copies printed. Franklin's WAY TO WEALTH was originally published in POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC for 1758, and then separately as FATHER ABRAHAM'S SPEECH in 1760. This edition contains several parts: THE WAY TO WEALTH, LA SCIENCE DU BONHOMME RICHARD (French translation of the first-mentioned), LETTRES DE FRANKLIN (in both English and French), LETTRE à MADAME...., DIALOGUE ENTRE LA GOUTTE ET FRANKLIN, QUELQUES MOTS SUR L'AMERIQUE, AVIS A CEUX QUI VOUDROIENT ALLER S'ETABLIR DANS CETTE CONTREE; DR. FRANKLIN'S EPITAPH (in English and French), and J.B. Bodoni's CATALOGUE DES LIVRES IMPRIMES.

A very charming book, testifying to the great popularity that Franklin enjoyed in France.

123. FRANKLIN, Benjamin. Works of the Late Doctor Benjamin Franklin: Consisting of His Life, Written by Himself, Together with Essays, Humorous, Moral & Literary, Chiefly in the Manner of The Spectator. Dublin: Printed for W. Wogan, P. Byrne, J. Moore, and W. Jones, 1793. vi, (2), 303 pp. Frontis. port. Rebacked with orig. spine preserved, else a very good copy in contemporary calf with gilt-lettered red spine label. $3000.00

HOWES F-323. Franklin's most famous work is his Autobiography. It first appeared, translated into French, in Paris, 1791. The Private Life (London, 1793) was the first English edition, a poor retranslation of the French. The Works, also London 1793, has a retranslation by Gibelon and edited by Franklin's friend, Benjamin Vaughan. This edition was ready for publication in 1791 but held up by the announcement of Franklin's grandson, William Temple Franklin, that he was publishing a edition. Ultimately, that edition was not published until 1818. In addition to the Autobiography this volume has over 30 other pieces by Franklin.

Evans 5033. Sabin 59973. Hildeburn 755a-c. Campbell 237a-c. Miller 288. An important volume of the Charters and Laws of Pennsylvania and of Philadelphia, printed by Benjamin Franklin. Franklin charged the Assembly 261 Pounds for the printing. The previous complete edition had been printed by Andrew Bradford in 1728. The need for a corrected edition led to the appointment in 1739 of Kinsey, Speaker of the Assembly and Attorney General of the Province, to prepare a new edition. Kinsey completed a revised edition in 1741 and gave it to Franklin, who required two years to do the printing. He finished the presswork in 1743, the year after the imprint date. One of the most extensive and important early Franklin imprints.

126. [FRANKLIN IMPRINT]. Know All Men By These Presents, That I...Am Held And Firmly Bound ...[caption title]. [Philadelphia: Benjamin Franklin, 1730?]. Printed form, 12-3/4 x 8 inches, completed in manuscript and docketed on verso. Small red wax seal. A couple light spots and old fold lines, but essentially fine. $10,000.00

MILLER 10 (ref). This partially printed mortgage bond is a very early Benjamin Franklin imprint, produced the first few years of the establishment of his printing office in Philadelphia. By this form, dated in manuscript 6 November 1735, Standish Ford, gentleman, of Moorland, Philadelphia County, borrows £120 at 5 per cent per annum from the trustees of the General Loan Office of Pennsylvania. The trustees are identified in type as Andrew Hamilton, Charles Read, Jeremiah Langhorne, Richard Hayes, and John Wright. The document is signed in manuscript by Ford (beside the wax seal), and also by Charles Brockden and John Webbe as witnesses. Brockden was Recorder of Deeds for the county of Philadelphia and Clerk of the General Loan Office. John Webbe was a Philadelphia lawyer who had contributed articles to Benjamin Franklin's Pennsylvania Gazette and been chosen by Franklin to represent him in his suit against fellow printer Andrew Bradford to collect accounts owing to Deputy Postmaster General Spotswood. Franklin discussed his idea for what became the General Magazine with Webbe and offered him the post of editor. But Webbe took the concept to Bradford who started the American Mercury on 30 October 1740 with Webbe at its helm. It preceded the General Magazine by three days, thus winning the right to be called the first magazine published in America.

Miller does not list this specific printing of this mortgage form in his bibliography of Franklin's printing, but he does include an earlier example of this same form, printed in 1729. "This pair of legal forms appears to have been the usual ones signed by inhabitants of the Province of Pennsylvania in borrowing mortgage money from the General Loan Office. Franklin, and later Franklin and Hall, along with other Philadelphia printers, must have done numerous reprintings of the forms"--Miller 10. The present form gives a printed date of "One Thousand Seven Hundred and Thirty [blank], and could likely have been printed any time between 1729 and 1735. Even identifying it as a 1733 imprint would place it within the first 100 Franklin imprints described by Miller. No copies of this form are listed on the NAIIP database of pre-1801 North American Imprints. A rare and very desirable example of an extremely early Franklin imprint.

Contemporary paneled calf, rebacked, with original gilt leather label. Minor edge wear, corners worn. Two bookplates on front endpapers. Single small wormhole running through text, plates and maps, most noticeable as a small track in the index. Minor toning. Very good. $5750.00

First edition of this important contemporary account of an early circumnavigation of the globe. "It was Funnell, not Dampier, who really circumnavigated the globe on this voyage, as Dampier proceeded only as far as the South Seas. The purpose of the expedition was to harass the Spaniards and take plunder from vessels and towns in South America. Its failure was due to the differences that arose between them. Funnell arrived in England before Dampier and seized the opportunity to compose a relation of his voyage; a task for which he was poorly qualified. His narrative contained much that was disapproved of by Dampier, who immediately after published a VINDICATION of his voyage, pointing out the misrepresentations of Funnell" - Hill. The folding world map usually bound as the frontispiece is here bound before the first page of text. Sometimes considered a fourth volume of Dampier's account, though there is no indication it was meant as such at the time of publication. HILL 664. BORBA DE MORAES I:333-334. ESTC T52634. SABIN 26213.

Signature on front flypaper of Stephen Frontis, early member of the North Carolina Synod's Centre Presbyterian Church. Good+. $350.00

The Calvinistic Magazine, a Presbyterian publication, was printed from 1827 to 1830 and from 1845 through 1850, when it merged into the Weekly Presbyterian Register:

"The Calvinistic Magazine attained a reputation and an influence of great value to the Church at a time when something of its kind seemed especially needed. Some objected that it was too controversial and belligerent; but it suited a period of polemics, when Armenians had become very aggressive in their attacks on the Presbyterian faith and order. To repel these attacks and to defend our Church against their misrepresentations of her doctrines being one important purpose of the magazine, its pages abounded with sermons, essays and dialogues on all the principal subjects on which the parties differed in doctrine and polity." Alexander, A Brief History of the Synod of Tennessee, from 1817 to 1887, 63 [1890]. The Magazine also dished out some dirt on Roman Catholicism. Allen 809. 153. [GALLATIN, Albert]. Report of the Secretary of the Treasury, on the Subject of Public Roads and Canals; Made in Pursuance of a Resolution of Senate, of March 2, 1807. Washington: Printed by R.C. Weightman, 1808. 1st ed. 123pp. Antique-style full calf, gilt-ruled spine, red morocco spine label. Light scattered foxing, else a very good copy. $750.00

HOWES G-27. Rink 4033 (for the 1816 ed.). A polymath and visionary, Gallatin was a dedicated public servant who applied his talents to a variety of American problems in the late 18th and early 19th centuries. "The construction of roads dates from Gallatin's report of 1808...This report presented a national plan of roads and canals as part of an internal improvement movement in which the federal government was to play a leading role. Despite Gallatin and early advocates of internal improvements, the federal government was not to be a partner in road building until the twentieth century. Thus, his report remains only an island in a flood tide of internal improvements that surfaced in the nineteenth century under the aegis of state and local governments joining with private enterprise, to build turnpike roads, canals, and railroads." Review of Seely, Building the American Highway System, in 10 The Public Historian 103-105 (#3, Summer 1988). "Contains communications on the subject of canals by B.H. Latrobe and Robert Fulton." Rink.

154. GALLATIN, Albert. Views of the Public Debt, Receipts, & Expenditures of the United States. Second Edition. Philadelphia: Printed by Mathew Carey, 1801. 72pp. 4 tables, one on 2 pages. Removed. Very good. $300.00
Sabin 26399. The first edition was published in New York in 1800. Gallatin emigrated from Geneva to the U.S. in 1780 and settled in western Pennsylvania. He served in the state legislature and was elected to the federal House of Representatives in 1794. He played an important role in the complex political events of the following years and helped to create the Committee on Ways and Means which oversaw government expenditure. He was appointed Secretary of the Treasury under Jefferson in 1801. This pamphlet articulates Gallatin's highly influential views on the need for financial responsibility and oversight which he was soon to implement as Secretary of the Treasury.

Very good. $4500.00
AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE 164. EVANS 14059. SABIN 26422. HOWES G34. An important Loyalist tract from the leading Loyalist printer. It is described by Howes as "one of the most famous Tory tracts, upholding unlimited Parliamentary supremacy. In several colonies copies were officially burned." Galloway later fled America for England. This copy is one (probably the second) of two states, with errata on the verso of the title page.

157. [GALLOWAY, Joseph]. A Letter to the Right Honourable Lord Viscount H-E, on His Naval Conduct in the American War. London. 1779. 1st ed. [2],50pp. Modern boards. Lacks half-title. Else very good. $900.00

American Controversy 79-43a. Howes G42. Galloway, a leading Loyalist, criticizes the actions of Admiral Viscount Richard Howe, brother of Gen. William Howe, during the American Revolution. In 1780-81 Galloway printed a series of eight letters which appeared in the London Chronicle, signed "Cicero," charging the Admiral with gross misconduct in his failed operations during the war. This pamphlet addresses Howe's conduct during the 1776-79 period, when Howe was battling the French fleet and the smaller American forces.

158. [GALLOWAY, Joseph]. Letters to A Nobleman on the Conduct of the War in the Middle Colonies. London: J. Wilkie, 1779. viii,101pp. plus folding map and advertisement leaf. Antique style three-quarter calf and marbled boards. Some light offsetting to map and title page, else quite clean internally. Very good. $1500.00

HOWES G43. SABIN 26436. AMERICAN CONTROVERSY 79-44b. The second edition of this important work on the campaign of Gen. Howe, 1777-78, by the most prominent Loyalist in America during the Revolution. "Written to demonstrate the shameful misconduct of the English generals in the American war" - Sabin. The map, "A Plan of the Operations of the British & Rebel Army, in the Campaign, 1777," shows the region around the Schuylkill, Delaware, and Brandywine rivers, with an inset of Mud Island Fort.

159. [GALLOWAY, Joseph]. The Speech of Joseph Galloway, Esq; One of the Members for Philadelphia County; In Answer to the Speech of John Dickinson, Esq; Delivered in the House of Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania, May 24, 1764. On Occasion of a petition drawn up by order, and then under the Consideration of the House, praying His Majesty for a Royal, in Lieu of a Proprietary Government with a preface by a Member of the Assembly. London: W. Nicholl, 1765. 1st London ed. [2], 92 pp. Bound in old marbled boards, newly rebacked in leather. $4500.00

HOWES G-50. Evans 9672. American Controversy 64-8b. The first London edition printed in the same year as the Phila. edition. (Although the title page gives the year as 1765 in Roman numerals, Adams, in The American Controversy, indicates that it was printed in 1764.) Galloway was one of the leaders of the Pennsylvania Assembly and, at this time, a close friend of Benjamin Franklin. The "Member of the Assembly" who wrote the preface is identified by Adams as Franklin. The preface is a very bitter attack on the Penn family and their supporters. Galloway, through this speech and in other ways, won the support of the Assembly for a petition to King George III pleading that the proprietary governors of Pennsylvania be replaced by direct royal government. Galloway later became one of the most prominent Tories.

160. GANO, John. Biographical Memoirs of the Late Rev. John Gano, of Frankfort, (Kentucky.) Formerly of the City of New-York. Written Principally by Himself. New-York: Printed by Southwick and Hardcastle, for John Tiebout, 1806. 1st ed. 16mo. 151pp. Contemporary tree calf, gilt-ruled spine, red morocco spine label. Scattered foxing and toning, early ownership signatures, else very good. $1000.00

HOWES G-56. Gano (1727-1804) was a Baptist clergyman who served as chaplain in the Revolution and came to Kentucky in 1787. His son, Stephen, also a clergyman, encouraged him to write his memoirs and published them after his death. Includes an account of his settlement in Kentucky in 1757 and descriptions of skirmishes with Indians in Pennsylvania as well as Gano's part in Sullivan's expedition against the Indians of New York in 1779. "He made a second journey through the Carolinas about 1758 and stayed for two years ... the chief historical value lies in the impression he conveys of an itinerant preacher's work among the simple rural folk of the South, the primitive living conditions, and primitive religious faith" Clark, Old South I, 242.

Dornbusch III: 2058. Garnett served as colonel of artillery in the Army of Northern Virginia. He was present at Manassas, Seven Days, Antietam, Chancellorsville, and Gettysburg. He was suspended by Lee on 18 February 1864 and relieved of command six weeks later. With the ownership signature of Talman Jordan, who had been a private in Co. K, 189th New York Infantry.

167. GARRARD, Lewis H. Memoir of Charlotte Chambers. Phila.: Printed for the Author, 1856. 1st ed. vii, lx, 135pp. A fine copy in orig. blindstamped cloth. $1500.00

Howes G-69, "aa." Scarce. A collection of letters by an early settler of Ohio, edited and with an introductory "Historical Sketch" by her grandson. Thomson's Bibliography of the State of Ohio notes: "The brief title conveys no idea of the great historical value of this book to the Ohio historian;...pp. 18-130 consists of letters written by Mrs. Chambers, while living near Cincinnati, from 1797 to 1821. These relate mainly to the early settlement of Cincinnati, and the Northwest Territory, and also give an account of the Ludlow Family...." Garrard's introduction traces the fortunes of the Chambers family in Pennsylvania in the 18th century.

Rare, no more than twenty copies are thought to exist. Worldcat locates 14 copies. HOWES G-76, "b." Evans 19558. Vail 748 (locating 4 copies). Sabin 49044. Seidensticker p.117. Doll & Funke, Ephrata Cloisters 427. The last copy offered at auction was in 1976. "Chief source for the history of this Pennsylvania cloister founded by Conrad Beissel"-Howes. "This biography of Johann Conrad Beissel, the founder of the Ephrata Community, is the principal source of information regarding that remarkable institution. Brother Agrippa, is Johann Peter Miler; and Brother Lamech's secular name is said to be Jacob Gass"-Evans. "There is nothing quite like it in American literature.... Best of all, it tells a story that is unique in our annals-and tells it well"-Alderfer, p.169.

*The apostolic Christian community of the Einsamen or Solitary Brethren flourished in Ephrata, Pennsylvania, between the early 1730s and the dawn of the 19th century. Beissel and his followers renounced worldly allegiances and lived austerely, allowing themselves "only one regular meal a day, severely abstemious, and vegetarian"; "the limited production of their agricultural and milling operations was already communalized." The descriptions of vegetarian practices include "ohne thierische Speiße" (without animal foodstuffs") at p.114; and borrows from Pythagoras "um also seinen Schuelern die thierische Art des Fleischessens...ab zu gewoehnen" (so as to train his students away from the animal style of eating flesh) at p.137. Everett Gordon Alderfer gives a detailed account in The Ephrata Commune: An Early American Counterculture (Univ. of Pittsburgh, 1985). Some of Beissel's hymnals and poetic writings were printed by Benjamin Franklin; in 1748 the press of the Brethren at Ephrata printed the Mennonite Martyrs Mirror, *Der blutige Schau-Platz oder Martyrer-Spiegel.

From the preface to the 1889 translation by J. M. Hark: "Its chief value lies not only in the great rarity of the work, but also in the fact that it is one of the most interesting specimens of book-making in Pennsylvania to be found anywhere, the paper, printing and binding, all being of strictly native production . The work has a larger interest and an intrinsic value of its own, as an exceedingly frank and ingenuous contribution to our knowledge of the peculiar and wholly unique social and religious condition, and entire spiritual life, of a very considerable part of the early settlers of Central and Southern Pennsylvania."

second American edition of the first published first-hand account of the Lewis and Clark expedition. This edition is desirable because it is the first to contain illustrations, which are crude but striking. Gass was one of the sergeants of the Lewis and Clark expedition. He kept a daily journal during the journey, as instructed by Thomas Jefferson and Meriwether Lewis, and was thus able to publish his account only a year after the return of the expedition. His narrative was eagerly seized upon in the absence of the official report, which did not appear until 1814. This is the second state of this edition, with the title page noting "Second Edition - with Six Engravings." An important contemporary account of the expedition.

170. GASS, Patrick. A Journal of the Voyages and Travels of A Corps of Discovery, Under the Command of Captain Lewis and Captain Clarke of the Army of the United States, From the Mouth of the River Missouri through the Interior Parts of North America to the Pacific Ocean, During the Years 1804, 1805, & 1806. Containing An Authentic Relation of the Most Interesting Transactions During the Expedition: A Description of the Country: and An Account of Its Inhabitants, Soil, Climate, Curiosities and Vegetable and Animal Productions. London: J. Budd, 1808. iv,381pp. Handsome 19th-century half calf and marbled boards, spine gilt, leather label. Minor wear to extremities. Light occasional foxing. Very good. $6000.00

The first British edition of the Gass narrative, usually considered the best, is printed in a large and elegant format as opposed to the American original; it is also rarer than the Pittsburgh first edition and is not listed in the NSTC. The two-page introduction by English publisher J. Budd is dated April 18, 1808 and makes a virtue of the fact that Gass "appears to have been of inferior rank in the Expedition; but, for those who wish to know the unadorned truth, that circumstance is not likely to be lamented. From such facts as he records, the reader will be able to form a much more correct idea of the real state of the country, than he would from a narrative, written under the influence of a desire to establish or confirm certain pre-conceived positions; not to mention another influence, too generally prevalent in America, namely, that of self-interest, for which there may be such ample scope for indulgence, in giving an account of countries, immediately adjoining that of a nation of land-jobbers."

Because of the delay in the publication of the official account, Gass' journal was the first to appear, and as such was eagerly taken up by readers starved for information about Lewis and Clark. Gass was a sergeant who, by order of Lewis and at the insistence of Thomas Jefferson, kept a journal of the expedition's activities, and this book seems closely based on that document. "Patrick Gass was a rough reliable frontier soldier when he joined the Lewis and Clark expedition. He was made a sergeant when Sergeant Floyd died. He writes a terse soldier's narrative, exasperating in its brevity, but always with rugged honesty. His story was for many years the only true account of the expedition - the first real information the nation had of the Oregon country and of the Louisiana Purchase. It is a work of primary importance" - Webster A. Jones. WAGNER-CAMP 6:2. HOWES G77, "b." LITERATURE OF THE LEWIS AND CLARK EXPEDITION 3.2. GRAFF 1517. FIELD 595.

171. GAUSE, Isaac. Four Years with Five Armies. Army of the Frontier, Army of the Potomac, Army of the Missouri, Army of the Ohio, Army of the Shenandoah. N.Y. and Wash.: Neale Publishing Company, 1908. Frontis. Portraits. 384pp. Very good in orig. cloth. $350.00
Krick 159. "Gause fought against Quantrill and Morgan in the West, against Indians on the frontier; and with Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley in 1864. He won the Medal of Honor for capturing the colors of the 8th South Carolina Infantry in the fight near Berryville, Virginia, on September 13, 1864. There is a chapter on Gause's experiences at Cedar Creek, and another concerning the Wilson-Kautz raid of June 1864. There is no evidence that the largest part of the memoir is based on a diary or other contemporary record; 1908 was a long while after 1865."

172. GEE, Joshua. The Trade and Navigation of Great-Britain Considered: Shewing, That the

Surest Way for a Nation to Increase in Riches, Is To Prevent the Importation of Such Foreign Commodities as May Be Raised at Home... London: Printed for A. Bettesworth and C. Hitch; and S. Birt, 1738. 4th ed. xxix,(8),239 pp. 19th-century polished gilt-decorated polished calf with gilt-lettered panelled spine, A.e.g. A near fine copy. $750.00

HOWES G-92. Expanded with a supplement and a table of contents. Joshua Gee (1667-1730) was a Quaker and friend of William Penn. Gee, a wealthy merchant, was among the original mortgagees of Pennsylvania and a member of the Board of Trade. This work is a strong argument for the protection of British trade by dealing with the North American colonies and there are chapters dealing with trade with the tobacco plantations, Carolina, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, and New England, as well as with European nations, Africa, and India. He argues that Britain's strength depends on not relying on trade with other nations, and it should instead trade within its colonial sphere.

HOWES G105, "aa." COWAN, p.233. HOWELL 50:482. A rare copy of Henry George's first book, putting forth in early form some of the ideas for which the economist and reformer became famous.

George holds that the private ownership of land is injurious to society as a whole, and argues that public lands should not be given in large grants to railroads, speculators, or corporations, but to actual settlers and workers themselves, who need the land and natural resources to create wealth. "With tremendous power and farsightedness, he attacks the railroads and land grants, boldly giving names and specific cases of wrongdoing. The especially prepared map shows the immense extent of the "Railroad Reservations" in California" - Howell. George also calls for taxes on land values and the abolition of other taxes that he sees as injurious to workers and investors as well. Much of the text relates specifically to land issues in California, often involving mining and railroads. An important and rare work of American economic thought.

177. GILES, Miss Daphne S. A Collection of Scriptural and Miscellaneous Poems. Ann Arbor: Printed by Cole and Arnold. 1845. 1st ed. 172pp, lacking the rear free endpaper. Bound in contemporary marbled boards. Light scattered foxing, Very Good. $500.00

McMurtrie, Early Printing in Michigan 312. All [MI] 588. Not in American Imprints, Sabin, Greenly, Eberstadt, Decker. An early Ann Arbor imprint. The Preface by W.A. Bronson describes the author as a blind woman, born in Vermont, who lost her sight at the age of fourteen. She was baptised in Bronson's Ann Arbor Baptist church at age 22.

178. GILHAM, William. Manual of Instruction for the Volunteers and Militia of the Confederate States. Richmond, VA: West & Johnston, 1862. 2nd supplemented ed. 559pp. 16 forms (including 5 folding); 82 plates (including 2 folding). Orig. blind-pictorial cloth. T.e.g. The portrait, which is laid in, has been trimmed, else a very good copy in later 1/2 morocco with raised spine bands and marbled flyleaves. $2500.00

Evans-13298. This copy includes the very rare portrait of Whitefield by Elisha Gallaudet. The great evangelist George Whitefield (1714-1770) was born in Gloucester, England the son of a tavern keeper who, himself, was descended from a line of clergymen. Whitefield began to show his bent for oratory at an early age and an inclination for the religious life. In 1735, he had a "new birth" and was filled with a love of God. After his friends, Charles and John Wesley, left for Georgia, Whitefield became the leader of the "methodists." Whitefield was one of the most famous preachers of his day, well known in both England and America. Huge crowds would come to hear him. He died after several weeks of strenuous preaching of what was called an attack of asthma. "Of the Great Awakening, he was above all others the Awakener." (DNB).

183. (HARMONY SOCIETY). Feurige Kohlen der Aufsteigenden Liebesflammen im Lustspiel der Weisheit. Oeconomie, [PA], 1826. 1st ed. 316, [16]pp. Orig. sheep-backed paper-covered boards. Some foxing, else a very good copy. $2750.00

Very rare; American Imprints 24527 locates 3 copies, none in Pennsylvania. This was the first item printed at Economy on the Harmony Society Press. It was prepared for distribution among members of the Society only, and few if any copies were given to outsiders. George Rapp's exhortation to his followers begins, "Hearken, People of the Lord! Into your future condition you are not to look as by a vision but you are to do so by your act of faith. There are worlds and dwellings there; they still shine in youthful splendor; there thousands of years have passed; the change of time never robs them of their light; but here under your eyes everything disappears, decays, passes away, the splendor of the earth, earth's happiness, is a time of falling." The rest of the book is composed of prose hymns that cover the Society's various festivals and special occasions. A valuable work, providing insight into the mystical aspects of the Harmony Society and its prophetic leader.

WAGNER-CAMP 8:7. SABIN 24508. GRAFF 1331. RADER 1397. HOWES F153a. PILLING PROOF-SHEETS 1299. A slightly later printing of the so-called "Apocrypha edition" of Lewis and Clark, bearing the name of compiler William Fisher on the title page. In response to the growing curiosity of the public regarding the findings of Lewis and Clark, and the delay in publication of the "authorized account" of their expedition, this compilation of bits and pieces from already published works appeared (culled from Gass, Clark, Mackenzie, Carver, and Jefferson's MESSAGE... of 1806), misleading the reader into believing it was the account sanctioned by the government and containing all the information gathered during the journey. Howes calls this the "spurious" edition, while Sabin states it contains material not published in any other edition.

Dornbusch II, 917. Turnbull V, 58. Rare, Worldcat locates 17 copies. The Georgetown Rifle Brigade was formed as a militia for the Georgetown, South Carolina, community in 1859 and became Co. A at the outbreak of the war. The first three pages contain the unit roster and the body of the text describes four years of heavy fighting in Georgia, Tennessee, and South Carolina under Bragg and Hood. Particular emphasis is given to the central role Co. A played in both the battle for Atlanta and the action at Nashville.

199. (SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR). [FIRST TROOP PHILADELPHIA CITY CAVALRY]. [Monumental Annotated Photographic Record of the First City Troop of Philadelphia, Recording Their Training and Service in the Spanish-American War]. [Various places, including Pennsylvania, Virginia, at sea, New Jersey, and Puerto Rico. May to September, 1898]. [171]pp. with 342 photographs. Four large quarto photograph albums. Matching contemporary three-quarter crimson morocco and cloth, front covers gilt. Minor shelf wear and some rubbing. Images in overall very good condition.

An amazing assemblage of photographs documenting the Spanish-American War experiences of the First Troop Philadelphia City Cavalry, which was at that time the oldest volunteer military unit in continuous service to the United States. The photographs are arranged chronologically in four contemporary photo albums, with the images occasionally annotated in a contemporary hand, and including the identification of numerous members of the Troop.

The first volume opens with images of Mt. Gretna, Pa., "where troops [were] sworn into U.S. service, May 7th 1898, by Maj. Thompson, U.S.A." The photographs record field exercises, camp building and tent organization at Camp Hastings, cavalry drills, an image of "Capt. Groome reading the Articles of War to Troop, June 1898," a "first arrival of government horses," several shots of men training and "throwing" their horses, shooting practice, "Capt. Groome assigning Government horses to Troopers," and various shots of the men at work and even some play. Over the course of the album, the names of numerous soldiers are recorded below several of the photographs.

The second album opens with several photographs of the Troop striking their tents in preparation for leaving Camp Hastings at Mt. Gretna, headed for Camp Alger at Dunn Loring, Va. Here, the Troop was ordered to increase their enlistment numbers. At Camp Alger, the Troop was also fitted out with federal supplies and assigned to the Second Army Corps, commanded by Maj. Gen. William Graham, who is pictured here. Other photographs capture the camp scene at Alger; "the First Troop picket line," the Troop receiving their federal-issue khaki uniforms, the Troop at roll call, and some shots featuring African-American helpers.

In late July, the Troop was sent to Newport News, and several photographs here record their brief time there, with about a dozen shots of their temporary camp. On July 28, 1898, the Troop left Virginia on the transport ship MASSACHUSETTS, bound for Puerto Rico. Several images here capture the frenetic loading of the troops and their horses onto the ship, with the remaining half dozen or so shots recording the Troop's time on board.

The third album picks up where the second left off, with the First City Troop embarked on the transport ship MASSACHUSETTS, headed for Guanica, Puerto Rico. Shipboard activities captured here include a few shots of groups of men being showered with water hoses. Several shots record the arrival of the men in the port of Guanica, where they encounter the hospital ship NUECES, which reports of the news of the "surrender of Ponce." After the men disembark, they pitch their camp around Cathedral Virgin del Carmen on August 5. The next day, several photographs record the unloading of horses and stores in the harbor at Ponce. The remaining thirty-eight photographs in this volume record scenes in the interior of Puerto Rico, and are the most heavily-annotated of the four albums. The images record scenes from the "road from Port of Ponce to Ponce," several scenes capturing a market day in Ponce and recording numerous native islanders, the Troop's "temporary camp about 2 miles beyond Ponce," the "Troop wagon leaving camp beyond Ponce to join wagon train for Guayama" on August 8, a shot of the Troop's wagon "on road to Guayama in a Porto Rico mudhole," images of the wagon train to Guayama with the H Troop, 6th U.S. Cavalry, the "Point of Advance Guard entering Guayama within the lines," the Troop itself "entering Guayama, passing General Brooke's Headquarters," a "View of First Troop Phila. City Cavalry, U.S.V., Camp at Arroyo, August 10th to 6A.M. Aug. 13th 1898," with the last ten images recording the camp or the streets at Arroyo.

The fourth album documents the Troop's voyage home to Philadelphia. This time, they take passage on the transport ship MISSISSIPPI, and about half of the images record their voyage on board. On Sep. 10, 1898, they reach Jersey City in New York harbor, where they camp for a short time before returning to camp in Pennsylvania, where the album ends. A couple of months later, all three officers, and the ninety-eight enlisted men of the First City Troop were mustered out of federal service for the Spanish-American War.

Originally founded in 1774 by twenty-eight Philadelphia patriots as the "Light Horse of the City of Philadelphia," the First Troop of Philadelphia Cavalry is the oldest mounted military unit operating in continuous service to the American republic, being the first volunteer cavalry troop organized in defense of the colonies. Among the Troop's original founders was John Dunlap, printer to Congress from 1778 to 1789, publisher of the first American daily newspaper, and the first printer of the Declaration of Independence. Most of the earliest members were similarly notable professional men of Philadelphia. The Troop served with valor in the American Revolution, the War of 1812, the Mexican-American War, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, and every major American war through the Korean War.

The present albums present a unique and important record of the First City Troop's activities before, during, and on the way home from the Spanish-American War.

200. (TEXAS REGIMENTAL). GILES, L[eonidas] B[lantton]. Terry's Texas Rangers. [Austin, TX: Von Boeckmann-Jones Co., printers, 1911]. 1st ed. 105pp. Orig. cloth. Cloth speckled, faint scattered foxing to foreedge, else very good. $2250.00
 HOWES F-168, "aa." Dornbusch II, 1059. Nevins I, p.93. "Giles' short narrative is one of the best memoirs of the famous 8th Texas Cavalry Regiment, better known as Terry's Texas Rangers. The unit entered the war 1200 strong, fought and claimed victory in over 200 battles, and wound up with scarcely enough men to form a single company. H. Bailey Carroll called it 'one of the great recollections of that sterling group of Terry's Texans in the Civil War; and incidentally, has come to be one of the rarest pieces of Texana.' Dr. S.O. Young said it 'is so intensely interesting and so charmingly written that I defy anyone to take it up and lay it aside" Jenkins, Basic Texas Books 75. "As a part of Wheeler's cavalry this command harassed Sherman throughout the march to the sea and into the Carolinas" Coulter 184.

Foxed and tanned, slight dampstaining. Good. $2250.00
Evans 11669. Sabin 27643. This pamphlet constitutes a salvo by William Goddard, publisher of the PENNSYLVANIA CHRONICLE, in a feud against his former partners. These included Joseph Galloway, Speaker of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, Thomas Wharton, and Benjamin Towne. Apparently Goddard was seeking a degree of editorial freedom unacceptable to his partners. Eventually, Goddard would publish a supplemental pamphlet, and a postscript to that supplement.
209. GODLEY, John Robert. Letters from America. London: John Murray, 1844. 1st ed. Two vols. xxiii, 272; viii, 243pp. A very good set in contemporary half calf. $450.00

HOWES G-256, "aa." Sabin 28011. Reese, The Revolutionary Hundred 86. Larned 1341. Gephart 996. Nebenzahl, Battle Plans of the American Revolution 23, 63, 86, 105, 201. A handsome set of the "first full-scale history of this war by an American; to its preparation Jefferson contributed some aid"--Howes. "Gordon is deservedly reckoned as the most impartial and reliable of the numerous historians of the American Revolution"--Sabin. Gordon was a dissenting minister in England, who like many of his class sympathized with the contention of the Thirteen Colonies. Going to America during the disturbances and becoming pastor of the church at Jamaica Plain, now a district of Boston, he was throughout the Revolution a spectator close at hand of many important events, and the associate of many of the chief patriots. Later scholarship has shown that a good part of Gordon's history was taken from the Annual Register.

215. GORGES, Ferdinando. Sir Ferdinando Gorges and His Province of Maine. Including the Brief Relation, the Brief Narration, His Defence, the Charter Granted to Him, His Will, and His Letters. Edited with a Memoir and Historical Illustrations by James Phinney Baxter. HOWES B-250, "aa." One of 250 sets. Ferdinando Gorges was an early English colonial entrepreneur and founder of the Province of Maine.

216. GORHAM, George C. The Story of the Attempted Assassination of Justice Field by a Former Associate on the Supreme Bench of California. [San Francisco? nd. but ca. 1890]. 198pp. Original cloth. Gilt spine. Very good. This copy with pasted corrections. Presentation copy, inscribed by Stephen Field to his niece Ruth. $2250.00

Howes G259. Cowan,p.244. Field went to California in 1849 and began a long legal career which led to his appointment of the U.S. Supreme Court by Lincoln. His finding of fraudulence in the will of Senator Sharon as Submitted by Sarah Althea Hill and her attorney David Terry led to a threat on Justice Field's life by Terry. Eventually Terry was shot dead by Field's body guard. This is one of the few copies with correction slips pasted over some passages, as noted by Howes.

217. GOVE, Jesse A. The Utah Expedition, 1857-1858. Letters of Capt. Jesse A. Gove, 10th Inf., U.S.A., of Concord, N.H., to Mrs. Gove, and special correspondence of the New York Herald. Concord, N.H.: New Hampshire Historical Society, 1928. 4to. Illus. 442pp. Orig. cloth-backed boards, paper spine label. Very good. $600.00

Howes G-279. One of 50 large paper copies.

218. (TEXAS REGIMENTAL). GRABER, H.W. The Life Record of H.W. Graber: A Terry Texas Ranger 1861-1865. Sixty-two Years in Texas. [Dallas: Privately printed], 1916. 1st ed. 442 pp. Portrait frontis. Orig. gilt-lettered and rebacked in leather, some minor spotting to front cover, else a very good copy. $1750.00

HOWES G-280. Presentation inscription on front free endpaper: "To Mrs. L. R. Goodis by the Author; 1916." Howes notes that this was printed in a small edition. One of the rarest Confederate regimentals. Graber was wounded and captured at Shiloh, taken to Camp Chase, and then to Fort Delaware. He was paroled and rejoined his command in time for the middle Tennessee campaign.
